CompuServe'

Welcome To The Future

Thank you for your enquiry regarding CompuServe membership. Joining CompuServe is easy - all you need is a computer, a modem and some communications software.

To help you join CompuServe, we are pleased to offer you the CompuServe Membership Kit which includes:

- CompuServe Information Manager software for either MS-DOS or Macintosh computers which provides a user-friendly, windowing interface to the full power of CompuServe.
- A complete Users Guide for CompuServe and the Information Manager, including commands used to navigate your way between services and databases on CompuServe.
- A A$40/NZ$50 usage credit towards your CompuServe Pacific account.

To get the most out of CompuServe, we recommend The CompuServe Almanac, a compendium of all services available on CompuServe including Special Interest Forums, news and finance services and the Electronic Mall for shopping via your personal computer. Also, we have the CompuServe Navigational Wall Chart and the CompuServe Explorers' Guide Desk Mat which provide a quick and handy reference to CompuServe services.

Macintosh users may also consider The CompuServe Navigator, an ingenious piece of software which enables you to pre-define your CompuServe sessions. Just tell Navigator your information requirements and it will automatically connect and retrieve the information in a minimum of time.

Which ever way you choose, CompuServe is bound to give you access to more information, more computer software and more enjoyment than you ever dreamed possible!

Software for Connecting with CompuServe

There are many ways to connect with CompuServe.

Standard communications software used for connecting with Bulletin Boards can be used to connect with CompuServe. Many of these products boast 'scripting' languages which enable complex operations to be performed at the press of a key, or the click of a mouse.

There are also products specifically tailored to CompuServe. These include the CompuServe Information Manager (CIM for MS-DOS and Macintosh), CompuServe Navigator (for Macintosh) and TAPCIS (for MS-DOS).

Information, updates and usage scripts on all these products are available on-line from CompuServe. The products detailed below may be directly ordered from Fujitsu Australia.

CompuServe Information Manager

CompuServe Information Manager (CIM) is a software product developed by CompuServe, that provides a simple yet powerful windowing interface with pull-down menus, dialog boxes and mouse support. CIM gives you access to all of CompuServe's online services including Forums, CB, Securities Quotations, CompuServe Mail and much more.

Features:

- MS-DOS and Macintosh versions available
- Intuitive windowing environment
- Error-free data transmission using CompuServe's B+ Protocol
- Local/offline message editing
- Integrated local address book (compatible with CompuServe Navigator)
- Familiar desktop metaphor for messages
- Favourite Places menu for Quick Access
- Message Maps which graphically represent Forum Conversations
- Electronic Conferencing Support with split screen and multiple windows
- Graphic Interchange Format (GIF) Support
- Mouse Support

CompuServe Navigator

CompuServe Navigator is a communications program designed for Macintosh computers.

Navigator users can pre-define their entire CompuServe session prior to the time they actually access the CompuServe Information Service. Once the session is set up, Navigator will go online and retrieve the information the user requested.

Navigator allows users to browse a Forum's Libraries and respond to their Forum and CompuServe Mail messages off-line (while the billing clock is not running).

Navigator can also stop part of the way through its session and allow the user to take over control. This allows users to access the other areas of CompuServe that cannot be set up in the predefined session.

The CompuServe Navigator is MultiFinder compatible. This allows users to access their other Macintosh programs while the Navigator session is running in the "background".
